Corona – SARS CoV-2 – Covid 19

Let us deal with it reasonably!

TWT works and performs. Travel and personal contacts are restricted.

Due to its lean organization and high degree of digitalization with use of relevant applications TWT is well prepared.

No doubt the world is in crisis.

Does not matter if the virus is already spread or still only approaching.

Reducing personal contacts, improving hygiene, taking care for one-self, thinking for the other and slowing down public life up to lock-down and curfew orders short-term makes sense.

Nevertheless we have to expect that without an effective vaccination SARS CoV-2 shall spread globally into every last corner maybe troubling us for many years to come.

Commonly we are shocked but mankind over many hundred thousands of years has proven to be strong and able to overcome all challenges.

True prognosis for now and surely quite some time to come is not possible as we still lack experience with SARS CoV-2 and statistics from infections and illness.

Our systems are the best of all times and we especially should have good confidence in our scientific research and development experts to find vaccination and cures. Our logistic capabilities are also good so that distribution is effective once vaccination and medicines become available.

Our strength to fight the crisis, as always, lies in serenity.

We do not need to hide our emotions and fears but to overcome we all must have courage and fighting spirit.

We all by means of wise behavior must help to calm, control and manage the crisis' negative fall-outs.

Besides supporting our health systems to win time we may not be scared from the down-turns of our financial markets and economies which first of all simply show a reflex like (psychology at work) behavior contrary to the many demands and chances existing in principle today and in the future.

Let us not forget that bust from crisis typically is reason for innovation and mostly is followed by boom times with surge in prosperity although such will not be able to compensate all of the losses we will have.

Let us stay cool and let us act smart. As individuals, as entities and as society.

It is the best basis for best politics allowing best effective crisis management.

Let us live solidarity and agree not to leave anyone behind.

No doubt most of us individually will one way or the other suffer but let us count our losses after we prevail.

The threats we face are real. They are testing our contingency measures, they audit our systems and give us also new blueprints to make us stronger for future crisis reaction.

At TWT we are committed to go the extra mile it takes to support our suppliers, partners, customers and society.

Also now in the time of this pandemic crisis we are professionally at your service. Let us think positively and consider also the chances from and after the crisis. Dirk P. Schneider
